Financier's Comments on Week. NEW YORK, Dec. 10.-The Financier

ays this week:

Loans of the New York clearing-house

Loans of the New York clearing-house banks decreased $5,513,500 last week, reflecting, in part, the extensive liquidation in the stock market. The loan contraction, however, which has been almost continuous since the opening of November, has not yet run its course, the total reduction since the date named now amounting to a little over $50,000,000.

The current statement shows a loss in cash of $1,633,400, which is about $750,000 less than estimated, based on the known movements of money. The loan contraction was responsible in greater part for the decrease of $5,838,100 in deposits, but the statement does not balance closely.

The reduction in deposits brought the required reserve down nearly $2,500,000, so that despite the actual loss in cash, the total reserve of the banks stands $325,125 higher than a week ago, aggregating $5,365,000, or, excluding public deposits, at $15,191,700. It is worthy of remark that while cash in bank has fallen about $15,000,000 in a month, the surplus reserve has decreased only $500,000, revealing the fact that shifting of loans has been constant and in large volume.

A noticeable feature of the statement was the expansion of $407,600 in direculation, due to the action of one or more banks in using for circulation purposes United States bonds released through the treasury withdrawal of public deposits. The banks lost heavily to the sub-treasury last week because of transfers of currency to New Orleans and San Francisco, but the ordinary tide of morey is now in this direction, and while no doubt exists that the reserves will grow after the opening of the year, no very large surplus of idle money is expected.

of the year, no very large surplus of idle money is expected.

Last year the reserves of the New York banks rose from $8,000,000 on December 12 to $23,000,000 by the middle of January, and remained practically at or above that figure until April. The New York trust companies, which are practically doing as much loaning in New York markets as the banks, will make their semi-annual reports to the State banking department in a little over two weeks, and the showing they will make will do much toward clearing up what has been more or less mystifying in the New York banking situation for some time.

New York Stock Letter.

James A. Pollock & Co., bankers and rakers, 6 West Second South street, furnish the following stock letter and gossitp received over their private wire:

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Dick Bros.' Stock Letter—Market has continued strong today, further advances being brought about by renewed aggressive ma-unfavorable technical speculative condi-tion of the market from too much pyrasure against the aggregated risks of the unfavorable technical speculative condition of the market from too much pyramiling of speculative account and too much aggressive buil manipulation. We thought a good reactionary movement was in order, but we would confess we did not believe for a moment the market would develop such marked weakness or panicky conditions as it ran into en Thursday. The panic was the most senseless and unwarranted scare we have ever seen in all our experience, which goes back a good many years, and the sharp recovery and subsequent events in the money market and the general financial situation show how foolish it was. We are now more than ever confident that it was nothing more nor less than an audacious scoop or shake-out of certain large speculative pools which had become unwieldy and something of a menace to the market, or it was intended as an object lesson by some of the largest market interests against threatened undesirable legislation in the interestate commerce laws.

New York—Hutton Stock Letter—The strength of the stock market in today's short session reflected the bullish sentiment among the big banking interests. There was continued buying today on an important scale by these financial institutions of the better class of securities, in anticipation of increased dividend returns on certain influences and the placing of tions of the better class of securities, in anticipation of hereased dividend returns on certain influences and the placing of other stocks in the divided list which have neretofore paid nothing. The present large earnings warrant such action. The recent buying and taking away from the street of 49,000 shares of Baltimore & Ohio stock by one individual is an example of how the market is being made bare of railway, issues of this caliber, and indicates the great increase of wealth and purchasing power over a few years ago. Market values show very sharp advances since last Thursday's decline, and while we strongly advise the purchasing of all specialties of merit and promise, we believe in awaiting some better setback, which is likely to be seen next Monday or Tuesday. The bank statement today presented figures about as looked for and was without significance.

New York-Walker Stock Letter-We look for a good murket next week, and since the liquidation the market is in very good condition.
